M. F. ELLIOTT, OIL LAW EXPERT, DIES

Was Long Solicitor-General for Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

NOTED AMERICAN LAWYER

Served One Term in Congress From Pennsylvania District.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.
MANHATTAN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Mortimer F. Elliott, one of the most noted of American lawyers, and for many years solicitor-general of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, died to-day at his home here in his eighty-first year. The funeral will be held here to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Elliott was born on a farm in Tioga county, Pa., long before oil became a factor in the industrial affairs of his State. His father was a prosperous farmer and decided to give his boy the best educational advantages he could afford.

Until the son became old enough to go to college he attended the local district school and worked about the farm. He then went to Alfred University, Allegany, N. Y., but left the college while a junior to enter more promptly upon his chosen profession.

He entered the law office of the late Judge Wilson of Wellsville, near his home town of Mansfield, and was admitted to the bar in the late sixties.

Early in his practicing days he made a thorough study of oil litigation and became known throughout his and neighboring States as an authority in that growing branch of the law. He did some work for the commissioners of McKean county that brought him into prominence.

The decisions on many of the suits he handled resulted in the establishing of court precedents in a new branch of litigation. He has told with much amusement that some of his most successful cases were those in which he succeeded in getting the Standard Oil Company out of court.

He succeeded the late John Hall as counsel for the Union Oil Company, and when that company was purchased by the Standard Oil Company he was retained in its Oil City headquarters by the Standard Oil Company. Thus he became identified with the Standard.

For many years following he handled the litigation of the company in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana. In 1908 he joined the legal staff of the Standard Oil Company, and in January, 1910, succeeded S. C. T. Dodd as solicitor-general.

In the early eighties he was winning much fame in the courts that some of his cases were decided in his favor. He was elected to Congress from an over-populated district in the State of New York, and he served one term.

He was offered a renomination, which he declined, and had since refused all offers of public office. He served, however, with distinction as a member of the Constitutional Convention.
